Fees

The initial phone call is free. During this call we will discuss your art therapy needs and explore if art therapy is appropriate to meet these needs. By the end of the phone call, you will probably have a sense of whether or not we will be a good "fit."

For children and adolescents, I offer a free thirty minute in office consultation so that the child and parent may see who I am and the office, to insure a comfortable fit.

For adults and families, the first in-person session carries a fee as all subsequent sessions. It is a working therapy session during which time you will learn about yourself as much as about me and art therapy. It is your opportunity to ask questions that will help you decide what you want from therapy, even if it is not with me. So, whether you decide to continue with me or find another therapist, you will leave the first session a step closer toward your therapy goals.

My standard fee is $160 per hour for individual and family sessions.

I will gladly negotiate a sliding scale fee based on yours or your family's income. We will discuss the fee prior to the first session.

Insurance

At this time, Quinn Art Therapy is not impaneled with any insurance companies. I will be happy to discuss this with you.

Cancellations

I have a 48 hour cancellation policy for reasons other than illness or emergency. You would be responsible to pay for missed sessions without this cancellation. Cancellation must be made via phone.

Illness and emergency related cancellations are understandable and you will not be charged for a missed session due to these.
